Overview of NAFCC 2014

CONFERENCE SESSION TOPICS

NAFCC has identified new workshop “tracks” aligned with work currently in process on the Quality Standards for NAFCC Accreditation. Workshops have been specifically chosen to reflect the following tracks.

ACCREDITATION

Why is accreditation the right professional development step for you? Because NAFCC Accreditation allows for “Many Right Ways” to achieve success. Learn the benefits for providers, the families in their care, and their communities.

What’s the process? Understanding the steps makes it easier to achieve accreditation. This workshop will answer your questions from Self-Study to Re-accreditation.

Come to the lunch and learn discussion session and share your accreditation community successes. Bring your challenges and get help from others.

Learn how to prepare for the accreditation observation. Take away the stress by finding out what to expect and how to show the NAFCC observer the Quality Standards are met every day.

What is NAFCC Accreditation Realignment? Why change? What has been accomplished and what is the timeline for implementation. Learn how you can be involved.

RELATIONSHIPS

The providers in the home maintain genuine and positive relationships with children, families and community, and one another, which set the stage for healthy social and emotional development.

PROVIDER STRATEGIES

The provider facilitates developmentally appropriate practices throughout the day to support and enhance the learning, growth and development of each child enrolled in the program.

CHILDREN’S LEARNING CURRICULUM

The curriculum offers a variety of engaging, culturally sensitive and developmentally appropriate activities. These activities are implemented daily, to support, stimulate and challenge each child’s growth, learning and development.

SAFETY

The child care home environment is safe for the ages and abilities of the children currently enrolled. The provider consistently implements safety policies and a risk management plan which includes supervision and injury prevention.

HEALTH

The physical well-being of young children is assured through careful attention to routine care and sanitation, minimizing spread of germs from bacteria, diseases, and pets.

THE HOME ENVIRONMENT

The family child care environment is designed to meet the individual needs of all who use the space.

EQUIPMENT AND MATERIALS

To engage each child’s interests and to encourage exploration in a variety of ways. They support learning in all areas of early development. Equipment, materials and activities are also used daily to support both the planned and spontaneous curriculum, which is chosen by the provider to promote individualized learning for every child.

SCHEDULES AND ROUTINES

A consistent yet flexible routine is thoughtfully planned to support each child’s specific interests and needs. It includes time for individual and group activities, indoor and outdoor play and quiet and active times that allow children sufficient opportunities to rest and reflect.

PROFESSIONALISM

As a small business owner, the provider is ethical and caring in relations with the children and families served in the program, as well as with colleagues and other partners in the early care and education field. # CONFERENCE HIGHLIGHTS

MATTERS OF ENGAGEMENT: HOW TO ACCESS, BUILD, AND SUPPORT FAMILIES AND COMMUNITIES

Research suggests that children are more successful when their families, educators, and community are connected. Given the sometimes isolating nature of family child care, creating long-lasting engagement with families and the community can prove challenging. This workshop with introduce providers to multiple models of engagement and strategies for improving partnerships.

NAFCC ACCREDITATION OBSERVER REFRESHER TRAINING

Has it been more than two years since you took observer training? Refresh your knowledge, rejuvenate your observation skills, review the observer procedure, and renew your commitment as an observer. During this 4 hour training, we will review objective documentation, diverse perspectives, documenting and scoring the standards, flow of the observation day, and preparing for the visit. ## SCIENCE STARTS IN THE CRIB

There are little scientists in our midst! Every child practices the scientific method. When in a supportive environment with an intentional and responsive caregiver, babies' brains and bodies grow. Participants in this session will learn about the significance and impact high quality care has on brain development. We will explore what happens in a child's development when best practices prevail and what happens when we don't do best practice. Information across developmental domains will be presented and specific accreditation standards will be explored.

Presented by: Elaine Miller, Ph.D.

SHARING STORIES, CHANGING LIVES

Helping children learn to value themselves, care about others, and stand up to bullying and bias can be fun! Children want and need to have open discussions about the bias and stereotypes they see and experience. There are so many exciting ways to help start the conversations children need! Together we will create a plan for making it happen in your program.

Presented by: Meg Thomas, M.A. and Nancy Michaels, B.A.

UNDERSTANDING CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

As more family child care programs include children with special needs, it is important to understand who these children are, the needs of the child and family, and the educational and therapeutic services they typically receive. In addition to these topics, resources for learning about specific diagnoses will be offered and specific internet sites will be explored. Videos depicting inclusive programs, produced by SpecialQuest, will be shown.

Presented by: Linda Schumacher, M.Ed.

THURSDAY JULY 10, 2014

1:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.

DISCIPLINE AND SETTING LIMITS - A PRODUCTIVE AND CONSTRUCTIVE APPROACH TO GUIDING BEHAVIOR

If an adult is a good source of discipline early on in a child's life, he or she will likely work him/herself right out of a job, over time. Ultimately, a well-disciplined child in the early years will learn self-control and self-discipline. The four keys to success are communication, consistency, choice, and consequence.

SQUARE FOOT GARDENING

As a pre-k teacher I have been using the Square Foot Gardening (SGF) method in my program for close to 4 years. It is a simple, unique and versatile system that adapts to all levels of experience, physical ability, and geographical locations. You can grow all you want in only 20% of the space of a conventional row garden. Save time, water, work and money. You plant in a grid pattern rather than in rows. This gardening experience in an outdoor classroom opens opportunities to incorporate learning skills in both science and math. Working together as a group has opened many opportunities to focus on the benefits of healthy foods, activity, and diet as well as providing opportunities for social/emotional skills.

TO BECOME AN NAFCC ACCREDITATION OBSERVER

Are you interested in a great professional development opportunity? Can you give 8-16 hours per year to conduct observation visits? Check to see if you are qualified and then get registered for observer training! This is a great opportunity you don't want to miss!

A key component of NAFCC's accreditation process is the provider's observation visit. It is important to maintain an adequate pool of observers in every community. When you become an observer, you join that important pool and contribute to the success of family child care accreditation.

Observer training is being offered July 9-10. Call Yvonne Collins at 801-305-4739 for more information. Additional application required
